

ABSTRACT

In the present invention, apparatuses are classified into a plurality of categories, and based on a media key and device key data held by apparatuses belonging to the respective categories, revocation data intended for revoking the device key held by a specific apparatus of the respective categories is generated for the respective categories, and recorded on a recording medium.